This sum is important to us when we consider that it is a gift to his wealthy royal suprome highness, who is no greater in our eyes than the ordinary, honest laboring man. We have no cause to go to any expense to see this man. Let him come; we want to see him, but don't let us expend money to see him; we have other uses for it, and many other undertakings that are much more deserving the outlay than the entertainment of a man who has no claim upon us for an extra display of hospitality.
